Energy Flux has evolved a fair bit since it was born way back in July 2020 as a personal blog. It started with a very broad remit, but after much experimentation and reflection, I've boiled it down to this: to analyse global natural gas markets through the lens of Europe's net-zero journey. I have updated the "About" page with a Q&A that explains in more detail my ...

Energy flux is the rate of transfer of energy through a surface. The quantity is defined in two different ways, depending on the context: Total rate of energy transfer (not per unit area); [1] SI units: $W = J?s^{-1}$. Specific rate of energy transfer (total normalized per unit area); [2] SI units: $W?m^{-2} = J?m^{-2} ?s^{-1}$. This is a vector quantity, its components being determined ...
