"During the initial review of one of the bunkers it became clear partly through site inspections and research, but also because of the work of Festung Guernsey, that the buildings and features are part of an interconnected naval battery, which has been previously described as an anchored battleship, the features of which should be viewed together as a single defensive ...

Located on an impressive site on the west coast, Batterie Mirus was the largest battery built in the Channel Islands during the Second World War. Spread over an area of approximately 1km x 0.75km, most of the structures remain - including all four of the gun emplacements and the adjoining accommodation.

A tour of one of the four vast German underground bunkers that made up the largest gun battery in the Channel Islands, which was operated by the German Navy. This particular one is in its original condition and shows how much effort went into Hitler's directive of October 1941: making Guernsey into an impregnable fortress.
