

Bob Babcock (an infantry Vietnam Veteran himself) tells this story in a sensitive, compelling manner. It is an excellent book for those interested in what the Vietnam War was really like, as well as for friends and family members of Vietnam Veterans who want a greater understanding of what their friend or relative experienced. One of the best ...

Babcock jump out and run across a grassy clearing, whereupon they were cut down by North Vietnamese in the treeline. The C & C ship commander dropped to a twenty-foot hover and called on the radio that, from their appearance, the two were dead. Babcock and Mooney were seen lying face up a few feet in front of the helicopter.

The BrightLoop technology is a novel chemical looping process that is based on the oxidation and reduction of an oxygen carrier particle. The feedstock reacts with oxygen-carrier particles in a fuel reactor, forming reaction products which are predominantly CO₂, while reducing the oxygen-carrier particles.. The reduced oxygen-carrier particles then move to a hydrogen reactor where ...

The book title's question recurs throughout Robert O. Babcock's What Now, Lieutenant? An Infantryman in Vietnam (Deeds, 422 pp., $19.95, paper; $4.99, Kindle), an incident-jammed memoir that links a stream of anecdotes--some gruesome, some humorous--that highlight the kaleidoscopic tour of a young, proud, and impressionable Army ...
